

B Fun and Lucrative Summer Jobs for Teens

If you're a teen looking for work [...] here's a list of [...] summer jobs for teens.

Teen jobs traditionally pay around minimum wage or a little bit more, [...] depending on the type of job you get and whether you work full or part time. [...]

Sitting: children, houses, pets and plants

Babysitting is a classic teen job, but there are a lot more opportunities for teens to earn money by helping friends and neighbours care for kids, pets and even houses! [...]

Making: turn your talents into cash

If you can make something that's beautiful or useful, you've got yourself a job opportunity. [...]

Writing

If you are at all familiar with books like Eragon<sup>1</sup> or The Duff<sup>2</sup>, you know that teen writers are in demand [...].

Cleaning: gather your singing birds<sup>3</sup> and get ready to scrub

It's a dirty job, but somebody has to do it — and get paid for it. [...]

Volunteer work: do good and good will follow

Not all summer jobs have to be paying gigs.

Get a volunteer job and give back to your community — and did we mention it'll look great on your college applications?

Nicole Dieker, www.thepennyhoarder.com,
July 20, 2016.

<sup>1</sup>. Eragon: roman fantastique écrit par Christopher Paolini en 2003.

<sup>2</sup>. The Duff: roman pour adolescents écrit par Kody Keplinger et publié en 2011.

<sup>3</sup>. Singing birds: référence à Blanche-Neige quand elle nettoie la maison des sept nains.

1. What age group is this article aimed at?

2. How much is the pay for these jobs, and what does it depend on?

3. Describe the five types of jobs in your own words.